

SUBJECT: Guidelines for Faculty Workloads

I. Regular Semester Full-Time Faculty Workload

- 1
2
3 A. A minimum workload for full-time faculty during a regular semester is generally considered
4 to be twelve credit hours or sixteen contact hours. Faculty with a minimum workload are 5 eligible for benefits and compensated at 80% of salary.
6
7 B. A maximum workload (without extra compensation) for full-time faculty during a regular
8 semester is generally considered to be fifteen credit hours or twenty-one contact hours. As 9 many as sixteen credit hours or twenty-four contact hours may constitute an approved
10 workload when:
11
12 1. teaching assignments are limited to four lecture courses.
13 2. a workload is partially composed of "individual study" or "topics" courses.
14 3. teaching assignments include one or more low-enrollment courses.
15
16 C. Workloads for faculty teaching in allied health disciplines will conform to nationally accepted
17 good practices.
18
19 D. Other Variables. Within the limits described in Part I, teaching assignments should take into 20 account the following variables:
21
22 1. specific time requirements of assigned courses
23 2. projected course enrollments
24 3. new preparations
25 4. number of preparations
26 5. non-teaching assignments
27 6. travel to off-campus locations
28

II. Summer Session/Faculty Workload

- 29
30 A. The summer workload for full-time faculty members is generally considered to be nine credit
31 hours.
32
33 B. One lecture hour constitutes one credit hour.
34
35 Laboratory and activity equivalent contact hours are usually determined on the basis of 2/3
36 credit per clock hour of laboratory.
